FOCUS

WHAT ARE YOUR TOP THREE PRIORITIES RIGHT NOW?

Choose 2-3 creative projects or activities that you would like to focus on. Try thinking about what you would be thrilled to work on or finish in the coming weeks rather than what you should be doing. Though you likely have many options, consider limiting your list of priorities so that you have room to take on something new that sounds fun.

Do you want to leave this line blank to hold space for creative opportunity?

WHERE DO YOU WANT TO STRENGTHEN YOUR SKILLS RIGHT NOW?

Now let's think beyond specific projects or activities. List one area of your creative life you would like to refine, grow, or develop in the coming weeks. This could be renewed attention on a prior area of interest or something that you want to try for the first time. Consider what could make your experience more joyful or easy?

HOW WILL YOU HOLD YOURSELF ACCOUNTABLE RIGHT NOW?

Good intentions are often insufficient to spur action. We must plan for our happiness and productivity. Think about what internal and external tools you will use to find confidence, stay motivated, and feel camaraderie as you move forward. List them in the spaces below. Accountability at multiple time scales increases the likelihood of following through.
